Recommendation letter for Sandro Schulze

It is a pleasure for me to write this recommendation letter for Sandro Schulze with regard to his application as a student volunteer for ICSE 2012.

Sandro is a PhD student in my research group since late 2007. During this time he has shown excellent abilities as a researcher but also as organizer, mentor, and motivator in the research group and school of computer science.

Already in his early time as a member of my research group, Sandro showed surpassing abilities in problem solving, organization, and communication. Specifically, I have to mention his ability to work in the intersection between different topics such as databases and software engineering. He is open-minded to new ideas but also to problems of people around him, no matter whether they are colleagues or students. During his time in my research group he has (re-)organized a lecture, different working group meetings and micro workshops, and was involved with keeping the social integration within our research group alive.

Apart from his intellect and professional skills, his vast motivation is a key factor for his success. He is an excellent organizer with outstanding time-management skills, a very good team worker, and a pleasant and reliable person to work with. I support his application as student volunteer at ICSE 2012 in the strongest possible terms. This would not only be a great personal experience for his future career but also beneficial for the organization of the conference.

Sincerely,

(Prof. Gunter Saake)
